George Beban at
Coliseum in "The Bond Between."

In the Pallas-Paramount production of "The Bond Between," in which George Beban will be seen at the Coliseum on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, it is necessary in several scenes for a young woman to pose as Venus. A Venus was secured and when called for the scene, stuck her nose out of the dressing room door into the cold air and promptly refused to do any "Venusing" that day unless she could do it in a seal skin overcoat. Several methods were suggested as to how the young lady could be kept warm while the picture was being secured and finally Mr. Beban hit upon the brilliant idea of taking a stove and putting a nice drape over it and letting the young lady stand upon it.

This was done without informing the prospective Venus. Barefooted, she stepped on to the disguised pedestal and instead of assuming the classic pose of the famous statue, she executed a more or less artistic version of the Highland Fling as she leaped to cooler spots. Her feelings were injured as well as her feet and she promptly resigned while the engaging department went in search of a less temperamental and more fire-proof classic.

"Les Miserables" Shown for Last Time Tonight.

An event of note is announced by the Palace theatre in the magnificent production of "Les Miserables," presented by Pathe for the last time tonight.

Written by the great Victor Hugo and directed by Albert Capellani, a master in his art, nothing is left to be desired, as the story is enacted by the finest cast of artists ever assembled before the camera.

The French Temples of Art have each subscribed an artist for this great work, with the result that the perfection of detail is almost startling.

Earle Williams Stars in "In the Balance."

It could have been nothing but Fate that stalled the motor of Louise Maurel in front of the manor house of John Strangeway. And although the Strangeway portals frowned on the entrance of any woman, Louise Maurel found refuge within them.

And a deep, unreasoning love sprang up between these two—between Louise Maurel, the toast of London, a daughter of the city, reared in the liberal atmosphere of the stage, and John Strangeway, a gentleman, Oxford-bred, but still a rugged, up-country character, satisfied with the security and freedom of his position as squire in his native hill-hamlet. It was but natural that a great wall of prejudice should rise between them as a barrier to their love. And Strangeway had other battle to win, too.

John Strangeway learned many things in the great city to which he journeyed to battle for the woman of his dreams. He learned, most of all, that life was not worth living without the woman he loved—that he was ready to accept her, as she was, good or bad.

But just when he was ready to sacrifice his ancestral code, his stern inbred principles, his everything—for love—then he learned the truth—that despite the hissing tongues of gossip, Louise Maurel was a good woman. This will be shown at the Palace beginning tomorrow night.

Olga Petrova Sends Check to Little Protege.

Olga Petrova sent one hundred dollars to Rosa Cohen, nine years old, and blind, for her heroism in saving the lives of 30 blind children in the fire in the Blind Babies' Sunshine Home, at Bath Beach, Brooklyn, N. Y., on April 20. Rosa awoke, and after waking her little associates, notified Mrs. Grace McMillan, the night superintendent. Then the nurses came, and got the children out safely.

Rosa is a protege of Madame Petrova. Rosa wanted to study music, and Petrova sent a teacher to her. So the newspaper articles about little Rosa interested the Polish actress. Rosa asked Mrs. McMillan to invest the money for her in a $100 Liberty Bond. This was done.

WILL JOIN HUSBAND

Mrs. F. W. Williamson, wife of the United States surveyor, left on the Admiral Farragut for sea Westward yesterday, where she will join her husband, who left Juneau about a month ago.

SUIT FOR FEES

The case of J. H. Cobb vs. the Alaska Dry Dock Manufacturing Company is being tried before the District Court this morning. Mr. Cobb is suing the company for attorney's fees due him.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT WHY AD-MISSION PRICE MUST BE RAISED.

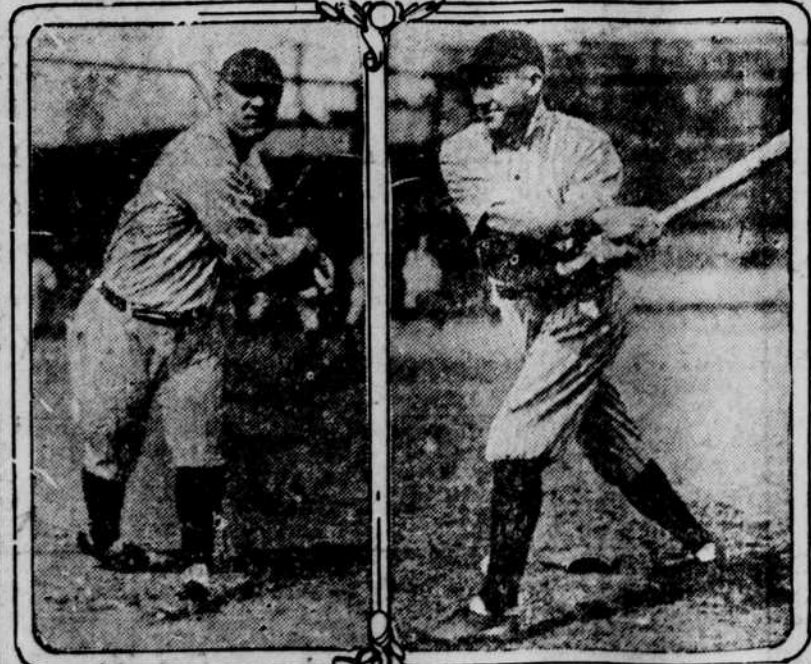

The Coliseum management announces to the Juneau public that it is forced to raise the prices of admission to shows owing to the fact that the Government demands the payment of the War Tax on admissions to be paid by the people, and not by the management. The following will be admission prices charged, beginning July 1st, and continuing until war taxation is taken off by the Government:

	Adm. War	Total
Adults, general...	27c	30c
Loose...	35c	40c
Children, under 10 years...	9c	10c
Children, 10 to 15 years...	13c	15c

If we do not comply with this notice we are liable to LARGE FINE.

NEWLY ACQUIRED FENCE BUSTERS IN YANKEE UNIFORMS

"PING" BODIE
Above are shown the first photographs of "Ping" Bodie, the outfielder, and Derrill Pratt, the infielder, upon whom Miller Huggins is counting to make the Yankees a contender in this season's race for the American League championship. Bodie came to the Yankees from the Athletics in exchange for George Burns, the first baseman purchased from the Detroit Tigers. Miller Huggins traded Mabel, Geddon, Nunnaker, Culp and Shocker to the St. Louis Browns for Pratt.

This is a Paramount Production in five parts. The management states that America's greatest screen character actor is at his best in this production, so you can't afford to miss it. A Weekly and Mutt and Jeff Comedy open the show.

SPORTS

Baseball is no longer the novelty to Englishmen that it was a few years ago but it was only recently that the natives had an opportunity to witness the American National game staged amid the proper surroundings. Major league clubs have toured England in the past and played the game with all the skill for which the players are noted but the final touch was always lacking for there were few if any real American baseball fans to supply the natural background for the sport.

With thousands of United States soldiers and sailors now quartered in England, this deficiency has been remedied and the Englishman has seen the fan as well as the player. The result, as may be imagined, was somewhat of a shock to the staid Britisher and the newspaper reports elaborated upon this feature. In describing the opening of the Anglo-American League, composed of three United States army, one navy club and four Canadian teams, Lloyd's Weekly News published the following:

"We saw a little of America's riotous enthusiasm for baseball at the Arsenal football ground yesterday, when after about three hours' play, the United States Army team beat the Navy by seven runs to six. From the moment when Admiral Sims, Commander-in-Chief of the American Navy in European waters, and General Biddle, the American G. O. C. in England, started a game with a friendly throw, there was scarcely a break in a nerve-disturbing hubbub. To the philosophical Englishman who takes his sport calmly it was all very bewildering, and he must have been thankful that there were not more than 4,000 people present. In this sense baseball is an acquired taste, and perhaps when we become more accustomed to it we shall regard this "enthusiasm" as an essential quality.

"Yesterday it seemed as if these

4,000 people made more noise than we hear from 100,000 people on Cup Final Day at the Crystal Palace. The crowd were part of the game. Every sailor in his picturesque white hat and every soldier in khaki, regarded it as his right to shout instructions to the men on the field. The players themselves kept up a running comment, and there was also the loud voice of the umpire proclaiming the "balls" and "strikes."

The play was good, and the finish close and exciting, albeit we had to wait for half an hour before a run was scored. Then the Army went ahead with three in their third inning and one in their fourth. But at the end of the eighth innings the score was level at five all. When the Navy obtained the lead in what would ordinarily have been the final innings it appeared as if they were going to snatch a win, but after very keen play the Army squared at six all.

"There is never a draw at baseball, extra innings being played until a winning run is obtained by either side. So the match was continued, and at the eleventh attempt the Army won."

Dine at the Gastineau. Concert every evening.

The aviation school at Millington, Tenn., has four traps in use and three hundred students. There are four traps also at the school in Austin, Tex., and in each of these places are thrown for the benefit of the airman on and off the ground. About 50,000 targets are thrown each week at these two schools. There are three traps at the School for Aerial Observers at Fort Sill, Okla., three at the aviation camp at Belleville, Ill.; two at the school at Mineola, L. I., and two others at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Tex., for the use of the 181st Aero Squadron. At all of the above schools there are instructors and a careful record is kept of the work of each student.

At each of the following aviation schools there are three traps: Atlanta, Ga.; Dallas, Tex.; Fairfield, O.; Lake Charles, La.; Mt. Clemens, Mich.; Rantoul, Ill.; San Diego, Cal.; Waco, Tex., and Wichita Falls, Tex.

ONE MAN IS KILLED AND ONE INJURED AT WATERFALL CANNERY

KETCHIKAN, June 22.—One man was killed and other injured last Wednesday morning about eleven o'clock when the retort at the Alaska Fish Company's cannery bursted, from, presumably, over-pressure of steam, is the reported brought in by Superintendent W. E. Epperson of Waterfall.

Yamamura, a Japanese employee, had his head crushed and died about half an hour after the explosion, while George Heid, foreman of the cannery was injured and taken to the hospital at Craig where he is recovering rapidly as his injury was not of a serious nature.

Superintendent Epperson said last evening in telling about the affair, that it was purely accidental. The men were busy as usual when the explosion occurred, and no blame could be placed on any one or more persons, he said. Yamamura who was sweeping about the retort at the time of the explosion, was hurled with such force against the side of the building that his head was crushed and he died shortly after.

ALASKA BEVERAGE COMPANY WILL SOON BE READY

Otto Hoerring, president of the Alaska Beverage Company, returned to Juneau yesterday on the Admiral Farragut. Mr. Hoerring went to Seattle a short time ago to purchase machinery for his company and it arrived on the same boat. The Alaska Beverage Company will begin manufacturing as soon as the machinery is installed.

Cash Cole was a round trip passenger on the Admiral Farragut from Juneau to Anchorage.

ALASKA BOY GETS UNIVERSITY DEGREE WHILE SERVING COUNTRY

Daniel Denham Grier, formerly chemist at the Cyanide Plant at Treadwell, was granted the degree of Master of Science in Metallurgy at the forty-third annual commencement at the University of Washington a few days ago. His thesis was entitled "On the Physics of Ore Flotation." Mr. Grier was represented at the commencement exercises by a decorated star on the University Service Flag, as he was with the colors of his country at Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va., at the time.

JUDGE ERWIN TO SUBMIT TO KNIFE OF EASTERN SURGEONS

Word comes from Battle Creek, Mich., that United States Marshal L. T. Erwin of the Fourth Division is there undergoing treatment for his health, and that he will have to undergo at least one, and perhaps two, surgical operations. He has a leave of absence of ten weeks from the Department of Justice. No fear is expressed but that he will recover from his illness.

SEATTLE MANUFACTURERS COMPILE DIRECTORY

The Manufacturers' Association of Seattle has compiled and printed a book containing a directory of all manufacturers in Seattle and all those having offices in that city. The directory is alphabetically arranged both as to the names of the manufacturers and the classification of the industries represented. It contains no advertisements, and will be distributed free to those sending to the Manufacturers' Association, Arctic Building, Seattle. Copies of the book have been received in Juneau.

ALASKA FISHERMEN GO OFF TO WAR

Olaf Martin, captain of the halibut schooner Lenor, and Bernhard Blenheim, a member of the crew of the schooner Gjos, both registered at Seattle for the selective draft, received calls last week to report at Camp Lewis. They have left for the South.

POWER BOAT DESTROYED

Word from Ketchikan says the power boat F. T. Barnes, of the firm of F. T. Barnes Company of Portland, Ore., was burned to the water's edge. Captain Burke estimates the loss at $15,000. The accident took place off Tolstoi Bay in Clarence Straits. The boat was built last season.
